KERRIGAN SIGNS NEW CONTRACT.

J. Warren Kerrigan, who has been one of the strongest players on the Universal program, has just signed a two years' contract with the Universal Film Manufacturing Company, which is entirely satisfactory to both parties and disposes of the immediate future of this talented photoplayer. Mr. Kerrigan has just begun the new series of Louis Joseph Vance's O'Rourke stories, which appeared in the Popular magazine, and virtually made it popular. No expense is being spared to make this series as wonderful as any the Universal has ever undertaken. Settings are being built for each story every bit as elaborate as the set of the "Inn of the Winged God." Mr. Kerrigan is so interested in the series that the matter of signing a two years' contract was a very informal matter. However, everybody concerned, Mr. Kerrigan, the Universal and the Universal patriots, are to be congratulated. Mr. Kerrigan will be seen at the Colonial theater every other Wednesday.

JACK DEMPSEY

1862—Jack Dempsey, "the Nonpareil," born in County Kildare, Ireland. Some of Jack's friends declare that his real name was Jack Kelly, but when he died of tuberculosis in Portland, Ore., in 1895 the death record read "John Dempsey," and this name also appears on his monument. Dempsey came to America at an early age and worked at a factory in Brooklyn, where his associates included Jack McAuliffe, afterward a lightweight champion; Jack Skelly, who became a famous featherweight, and "Brooklyn Jimmy" Carroll, a noted middleweight. Dempsey became lightweight champion after he had defeated "Marine George" Labianche, a French-Canadian. Dempsey recovered the lost honors, but in 1891 he was knocked

Scouts Seek Talent In the Small Towns

The city youth with big league baseball ambitions either must toss aside those ambitions or move to a small town.

For some strange reason big league scouts pass up the big towns and spend their time burrowing among the small towns. The further away the small town is the better. The scouts seem to give more weight to "tips" concerning ball players operating in towns of about 500 or 1,000 population than they do concerning stars in towns of 25,000 and 50,000.

When the scouts get a tip that there is a real ball player frisking around on the sand lots of Pittsburgh, New York, Brooklyn, Detroit, Chicago, Cleveland, St. Louis, Philadelphia or some other town they give those tips no consideration whatever.

Falkenburg Tells How He Came Back

The greatest come back in the history of baseball has told how he accomplished the seemingly impossible. Fred P. (Cy) Falkenburg, who was sent from the Cleveland Naps to the Toledo club of the American Association in 1911 as a baseball has been, gives his recipe for recovering pitching ability for the benefit of others in the national pastime, who seem to have reached the end of their usefulness in the big leagues.

Cy's recipe must be a good one, for it is the one he followed in coming back from the minors to fast company and making a record as the second best hurler in the game this year. The plan is a simple one. "Two winters of stuffing curled hair into automobile cushions, plenty of bowling during the cold months and careful attention to my physical condition were the means of my coming back," said the elongated twirler in a recent interview. "Sounds simple—doesn't it? And it is."

Bill Dahlen Hard To Catch at Second

"In all my years of ball playing," said Johnny Evers recently, speaking of persons with whom he had worked, "the man I found it hardest to touch with the ball as he came down to second base from first was Bill Dahlen, until recently manager of the Brooklyn Nationals. "Dahlen always came straight down the base line, directly at the base, but in the last ten feet of the distance there was no telling what he would do. He had a great way of anticipating where the throw from the catcher was coming and he played his slide to a nicety. Coming straight along he would suddenly fall down on his hips, to one side or the other, spread his legs, and then use the greatest cleverness in pulling out of reach and twisting himself back to hook the base with either foot. "There are other men whom I have found it difficult to get at second, and among them are Hans Lobert, Carlisle Herzog, Campbell, Bescher, Byrne, Magee, Miller Huggins and Wagner."

Waivers Asked on Pitcher Alexander

CINCINNATI, Dec. 22.—Waivers have just been asked on Pitcher Grover Alexander by the Philadelphia National League club. Whether this is a joke or simply a careless mistake in the office of the Phillies remains to be seen. The facts remain that among the names sent out prominently there stands out prominently that of G. C. Alexander. The most natural explanation is that a mistake in initials has been made, and that the intention was to ask for waivers on Grover's brother, who was with the Phillies for a short time last season and whose name is R. S. Alexander.

Committee To Act On R. R. Fill In Local River

SAM R. NUZUM AND C. W. EVANS NAMED BY BOARD OF TRADE.

CONSIDERABLE CRITICISM IS HEAPED UPON BALTIMORE & OHIO RAILROAD CO.

Messrs. Sam R. Nuzum and C. W. Evans have been appointed a committee to represent the Fairmont Chamber of Commerce in soliciting the aid of United States government engineers in reference to the proposed fill seeking to be made in the Monongahela river by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company, in order that the company may continue the construction of its Palatine branch through the city.

The Chamber of Commerce has been asked by the Railroad Company to recommend the slag fill, but the local body is not going to take any chances in antagonizing the government which has spent many thousands of dollars to give the people in this community a navigable stream.

At a meeting held Monday the matter concerning the fill was discussed by members of the Chamber and the above modus operandi was agreed upon. At a meeting held last week there was considerable criticism offered regarding the way in which the Baltimore and Ohio seeks to do things in Fairmont.

In order for the railroad company to build its Palatine branch it is necessary to construct a large retaining wall or to make a fill so that the tracks can be laid under the present bridge. In constructing the wall or making the fill a considerable part of the channel east of the mid-river pier would be taken up.
